The bride's attendant, Miss Marion Ess, followed, gowned simply in white organdle over white silk, and carrying Marechal Niel roses.

The bride and groom entered together and stood beneath an arch of evergreens and holly, a large spray of the emblem of good cheer and happiness, tied with bridal white ribbons, occupying the center of the arch.

The bride's gown was unusually beautiful and yet simple, built of white satin, velled with Brussels net. A graduated flounce, narrow in front, and half the length of the skirt in the back, encircled the skirt, and was, in its turn, covered with narrow ruilles of the net, and headed with a box pleated ruffle bound with white ribbon. The bodice was of tucked satin, low-necked and sleeveless, covered with a full high-necked drapery of net, and having long shirred net sleeves. Her bouquet was of white roses.

A largely attended reception followed the ceremony, Mrs. Ess being assisted by Mrs. Ewing Hall. Mrs. J. C. Gage, Mrs. Hugh McElroy, Mrs. W. A. M. Vaughan, Mrs. Azubah Georgen, Mrs. William Baird, Miss Rosa Compton, Mrs. Julia Hurt, Mrs. D. B. Holmes, Mrs. Samuel Griffith, Mrs. Frank Todd, Mrs. Henry French, Mrs. M. S. Burr, Mrs. R. E. Wilson, Mrs. Jefferson Dunlap, Miss Elizabeth Buchanan and Miss Gertrude Green.

Miss Mildred Faxon and Miss Fraser served ambrosia in the drawing room and Miss Johnson, Miss Ridge, Miss Jones, Miss Dunlap, Miss Winn and Miss Durfee assisted in the dining room, about 500 invitations were sent out.

The wedding ceremony of Miss Alice Upton and Mr. Benjamin H. Baker, which took place at noon on Wednesday at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Brumback, though attended by a limited number of guests, was most charming in every detail. The entire house was adorned with white agaleas. Easter lilies and white roses, but twas in the library, where the ceremony was performed, that the climax of lovellness was reached. Here the walls were nung with graceful garlands of white roses, and smilax, caught by bows of white sating ibbon, and at the farther end of the room mose a veritable wall of the potted agalens, iaintiest of blossooms, and of stately Easter liles. From the top of this nodded a greet a luster of long-stemmed American Beauty

Mr. and Mrs. William Bingham Clarke's dancing party at the Casino Monday evening for their son, William, was one of the most brilliant events of a week crowded with notable functions. The hall was embowered in Christmas greens, holly and mistletoe. The guests attended the Glee Club concert at the Gilliss earlier in the evening, the beautiful evening gowns of the women adding greatly to the appearance of an unusually fashionable indience. The club members, numbering forty-three, were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Clarke at the Casino after the concert, and with the other Yale men present were quite the llons of the evening. The other guests were:

lined, as was the low bodice, with scalskin, Lovely lace and diamonds gave the finishing touches.

Mrs. William A. Wilson wore an exquisite creation of pink brocade, combined with pink chiffon and pink velvet roses.

Mrs. Lee Porter was in heavy black silk, Mrs. James Porter's handsome gown was of green silk, and Mrs. Gaines was gowned in white silk.

The baliroom, one of the largest private dancing halls in the city, was decorated with Christmas greens and holly for the evening's guests, and Zimmerschied's orchestra furnished inspiring music.

On Saturday evening about sixty children made merry in the ballroom, dancing and consuming refreshments, and enjoying themselves to the full.

The marriage of Miss Grace Carlat, and Mr. Maynard Garner, of St. Louis, which was celebrated Monday evening at 6 o'clock in the Westminster church, served to fill the roomy old edince to the limit of its capacity with the friends of the bride and groom. A screen of palms set thickly with fragrant white roses nearly hid the altar and formed a background for the preaty picture made by the bridal party. The singing of Schubert's "Serenade" preceded the entrance of the bride and groom, whose coming was signalized by the march from "Lohengrin" played by Mrs. E. C. White.

The ushers were Mr. Fred Carlat, Mr. Charles Buch Mr. Sert Vet.

ceded the entrance of the bride and groom, whose coming was signalized by the march from "Lohengrin" played by Mrs. E. C. White.

The ushers were Mr. Fred Carlat, Mr. Charles Bush, Mr. Scott Bates and Mr. Robert Green, and the groom's attendant, Mr. Joseph Maynard. The bride was lovely, as a bride should be, in a gown of white satin with a demi-train. The yoke of the bodice was of tucked white mousseline, outlined with duchesse lace, and the long sleeves were slightly puffed at the top, and closely tucked. A spray of orange biossoms was fastened in the corsage, and her bouquet was of bride roses.

Miss Lysaught, of St. Joseph, the maid of honor, wore a charming frock of pale blue silk veiled with white mousseline. The skirt was tucked, and the round, lownecked bodice finished with soft ruches of mousseline and short puffed sleeves. A girdle of blue velvet and a large bouquet of Marechal Niel roses completed the costume.

Mr. and Mrs. Garner, after a wedding journey in the South, will go to St. Louis, where they will be at home at the Lindell hotel after January 20.

The young men and women home from college were very charmingly entertained at Miss Katherine Ross ten on Thursday afternoon from 2 to 4 o'clock. Christmas greens and holly adorned the handsome rooms and filled the air with a spicy fragrance. The dining room glowed with red carnations and the soft light of red candles, and delightful music ran like an undercurrent through the lively hum of conversation. versation.

A fitting conclusion to the gayeties of the week was furnished by the cotillon given Saturday evening by Mr. and Mrs. J. Chalmers Hall for their son, Barton. Mr. and Mrs. Hall have been domiciled in their handsome new Hyde park home, and on this occasion opened for the first time the spachous dancing hall on the third floor. Christmas trees took the place of palms and proved a delightful innovation, causing the room to appear, with its festooned ceiling and wreaths and sprays of holly, like a veritable bower.

Mr. and Mrs. James L. Lombard, Mr. and Mrs. R. W. Wood, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Gillham and Mrs. J. C. Douglas, of Leavenworth, assisted at the favor tables. Fourteen figures, four of them favor figures, were danced, Dr. Stanley leading.

Mrs. Lombard's guests at a dinner party and afterward at the Glee Club concert Monday evening were:

Miss Juliet Wilson, Miss Florence Perry, Miss Sails Perry, Miss Theo Mastin, Miss Jewel Wood, Miss Marion Ess, Miss Marion Ess, Miss Mastin Result Miss Josephine Angell, Miss Vassle James, Miss Vassle James, The men, all of those who are now students at Yale, and the party occupied all of the upper boxes.

The interest always felt in the regular meetings of the Central W. C. T. U. in the Rialto building was much enhanced on Thursday last by the presence of two honored guests—Mrs. Clara Hoffman, state president, and Mrs. Helen Harford, of Callfornia, national organizer for the W. C. T. U. The latter referred to the work in her own and other states, which differs somewhat in detail from that in this; but everywhere the same ruln and misery wrought by the drink traffic and habit. Every woman, she said, should acquaint herself with the laws of the state in which she lives relative to her property rights and control of children.

Mrs. Hoffman was pleased with the good attendance of members, and spoke of the necessity of maintaining the interest in the receitings by means of which women of culture may be retained and attracted.

In this day of intellectual development, the W. C. T. U. is well to the front, although at the first it was organized along the lines of philanthropy and justice to humanity alone. Mrs. Hoffman advocated the study of economies as the paramount topic for the next decade.

The recent death of Dr. S. B. Bell at Santa Barbara, Cal., was noted, and Mrs. Hoffman was instructed to express the sympathy of the union to his widow, who was its first president.

The first week of the new year being generally observed as the week of prayer, next Thursday at 2 p. m. was chosen for a prayer faceting, the topic being "Social Drinking," with Mrs. J. W. Bomgardner as leader. This meeting will be followed by the regular monthly executive session. A full attendance is desired.

ART NOTES

The "Bacchante," by MacMonnies, now in the Metropolitan Museum of Art, will be reproduced by the Henry-Bonnard Com-pany, the bronze founders, for the Luxem-bourg gallery of Paris, the French gov-ernment having given a commission to the sculptor for a replica.

Charles A. Dana's collection of porcelain and pottery is to go into the hands of fad-dists and relic hunters by the public auc-tion route in February, which might in-duce a cynic to think that Mr. Dana's work of love would have been more bene-ficial to himself and others had the col-lection been given where needed.

Still another artist of European celebrity has come. The stranger this time is of the gentler sex and her name is Mademoiselle Renee de Veraine, a sculptor of no little renown in Paris, where she has shown frequently in the salon. She is the author of a statue of Jean Goujon, and has executed busts of many French statesmen. She will remain some months in this country, where she has already received some commissions.

John W. Alexander, at present residing in Paris, is represented in the present ex-hibition of the Societe Internationale de Peinture et Sculpture, at the Galerie Petit, by a number of strong studies.

On the front of the new National Academy of Design in New York seven great tables have been reserved for those names which hold a supreme place in the world's history of art. The names selected are: Phidias, Glotto, Kaphael, Michael Angelo, Titian, Durer and Velasquez.

The autumn show in the Academy of Design has been the most successful in some years, for in the four weeks it has been open the sales have amounted to $1,200, which exceeds last year's sales by $1,200.

A Chicago paper, in writing of William M. Chase's visit to that city, says: M. Chase's visit to that city, says:

"The Art Institute was very fortunate in securing the services of Mr. Chase. The presence of a strong man from the outside world of art can not but have a wholesome effect, both in the school work and in local art circles. The personality of Mr. Chase is peculiarly adapted to be an inspiration to students. He is enthusiastic and untiring in his instruction, his faith in his own theories is unbounded, and he has the weight of a successful career on his side.

"His presence in the city was felt in many different ways: by the splendidly representative exhibition of his own works; by the exhibition of the Shinnecock school pictures, so characteristic of his methods of teaching: by the number of festivities in his honor; but, most of all, by the art students themselves, to whom he came as a stimulus to larger things."
